	We continue to review letter names and sounds, as well as separating and blending sounds together. We are answering questions about key details in the text, characters, setting and major events in a story.	We are learning greater than, less than, equal to, and counting from 11-20, and learning addition and subtraction facts to 10.
	Writing	Science/Social Studies
	Writing is infused in all subjects. Students have a journal in language arts, as well as math and science, in which they write about what they are learning. They will also engage in analytical, expository, and narrative writing over time. Sight words: Review 1st nine weeks and begin on the 2nd nine weeks.	In science, we are learning about properties of matter and how it can be changed. In social studies, we are talking about the importance of rules, as well as, places and jobs in the community.
